Medical Equipment Supplier Database [32|64bit]

New International Encyclopedia The Medical Equipment Supplier Database is a comprehensive database of medical equipment suppliers in the United States and around the world. It is designed to meet the needs of those in the health care industry who are seeking to identify and locate reputable medical equipment manufacturers, suppliers and importers. The quality of the information provided in the database has been determined by selected third party information providers. This unique database is considered by many to be the "Best in its Class." The database content, formats and other information products are constantly being updated to insure that it remains current and represents the latest available information. On Monday, the House of Representatives passed H.R. 2955, the Health Savings Accounts Technical Corrections Act. While we are pleased that the bill passed, we find the differences between the Senate and House versions of the bill surprising and disappointing. In particular, we are disappointed that the Senate bill did not maintain the tax incentives for HSA contributions. We hope these differences can be resolved to bring a successful bill to the president's desk in the near future. PEMBA and the Phoenix System, a medical equipment, diagnostic imaging and supply services company based in Darby, Pennsylvania, have recently merged with Aclara Healthcare, a provider of integrated solutions that enable better care for patients and improved outcomes for payers. We are very excited to become part of a company with a proven track record and established relationships within the healthcare system. May is National Medical Device Manufacturers Association (NMDMA) National Quality Month. NMDMA's commitment to quality is to provide a powerful spotlight on the manufacturing practices and systems used by medical device companies to ensure the quality and reliability of their products. In celebration of National Quality Month, NMDMA is providing an in depth look at the importance of quality to the medical device industry. AARP is proud to support our partner PEMBA in its efforts to raise awareness and education of the critical importance of quality medical devices used for patients. The quality of medical devices used for patients has been a growing area of concern for the U.S. health care system. A recent survey found that 96 percent of U.S. adults believe that the quality and performance of medical devices play an important role in ensuring patient safety. Yet, few Americans know what to look for in a medical device, and 87 percent of those surveyed felt the quality and reliability of medical devices had not improved in the past decade. On behalf of NMDMA and our membership, we appreciate A
