It is the actual monetary value of the promise and represents the promisee's interest in the promise. Even if a promise made by a priest or a governmental official is not legally enforceable, it still has a value, just as money in the bank has an objective value even though it may not be deemed to be legal tender. The reason for this is that money exists as an exchange medium and provides the means for settling claims in a state of freedom. A promise by a judge is legally enforceable in the secular legal system because the judge has been given authority over the person of a person who has entered into a contract, thereby making the person's body an ex-changeable good, as explained in Shabbos 131b."What's that, Whittaker?" In a recent photo she shared to Facebook (yes, now we know it really is her), the Thelma & Louise star is front and center of a huge Goldblum photobomb. Goldblum, on the other hand, is just looking down at her like, "Aww, hi Susan!" Sarandon is totally uncomfortable with Goldblum's presence. "Him being that close is disgusting," she said of Goldblum's face in the middle of Sarandon. "The world is not ready for this face." Sarandon has made a career out of playing people who are disgustingly grossed out by someone. On Thelma & Louise she plays a woman who has to put up with her unpleasant husband, and in Dead Man Walking she plays a woman with a victim's guilt over the death of a child. This time she's taking it a step further: Her character on HBO's Mrs. Fletcher is in a face off with her ex-husband, and it looks like she might have an adorable reaction to his visage.Hypertensive responses to graded levels of exercise after severe cigarette smoking. This prospective investigation was conducted to determine if the response of blood pressure to different levels of exercise was altered in 10 smokers with mild to moderately severe essential hypertension after they had abstained from smoking for 12 hours. After a period of base line measurements, each subject exercised on a cycle ergometer at 30%, 60% and 100% of their previously determined maximal exercise capacity. Supine blood pressure was measured prior to exercise, at 1 minute after the end of each exercise load, and at 5 and 10 minutes of recovery. During exercise, each subject's systolic blood pressure initially declined at 30% of maximal capacity but then rose during the 100% load.
