The webpart is quite simple with two text boxes and a submit button. I have coded the webpart using C# and have it in one of the SharePoint Designer 2013 webpages. The web part works fine on its own when not deployed to the project, but when I deploy and activate the webpart, its not activated and everytime I restart the application/browser, the webpart remains hidden. From the SharePoint Designer 2013, I have tried activating and publishing the webpart but still it is not visible. Could anyone please help with this problem? Thank you A: A few things to try: 1) Ensure that you have included the following code in the form's Init event: this.AllowDrop = true; 2) Ensure that the webpart has a unique id (aspx ID) that is not already used for something else. For example, this webpart won't be shown on the Homepage because it has the same Id as a ListViewWebPart. 3) Make sure that you have properly deployed your code (WebPart,.js,.cs,.js.cs,.aspx files). If you have just added your file to the SharePoint project, you will need to have it in the project, and then build the project. 4) Ensure that the Project is correctly set to the Server Farm you are deploying it to (F5). 5) Ensure that the Project that contains the WebPart is set as the Startup Project. 6) Ensure that the Project that contains the WebPart is correctly installed on the Server Farm (F5). 7) Ensure that the User that hosts the SharePoint Application Pool has the proper priviledges to read the WebPart you have created.
