The Brand Activation Studio is an evolution of the Microsoft Studios' Scrum Sprint, which was launched at Chelsea last season. The studio will work closely with the marketing team to develop campaigns to promote Chelsea as a global football brand. The new studio is headed by Jeremy Morris, who joined the club in June 2018 as a digital strategist to join the marketing team, and will be based at the Spurs Lane offices. Morris commented: "Our strategy at Chelsea has always been to evolve our brand. A Premier League and Champions League winner is an iconic brand that has an incredible heritage and a vast global fan base. That means we need to ensure we are constantly innovating and looking ahead to the long term. The Brand Activation Studio, led by Jeremy and our marketing team, will be a significant part of this." Morris will be supported by a team of staff which includes a project manager, copywriter and multimedia expert. The studio will work with the club's digital teams to develop campaign content for its digital, social media, mobile and other platforms. Hector Roca, Head of Digital said: "Our digital team have been working hard on content production and creation that connects with our audience in a meaningful way. The Brand Activation Studio team are an extension of
