It's really useful when I'm searching for related questions, but there's no way to know how many questions I have there. A: Are you looking to see a list of questions you've asked, and not yet closed (I imagine that this would be only questions that you've asked questions about) or even all of your questions? As of this post, you can see a list of all of your questions at your profile page at the bottom of the "tab titled "Your Participation", the list is labelled "questions asked". If you would like to make this page a list of all of your questions, I can help you with that here: Get a more detailed list of all of your questions and answers, provided that you have at least 10 reputation points. A: How to get the number of questions I have asked in the "Questions I've Asked" section in my profile. This is not currently possible. You can, however, get a rough estimation by starting to manually count questions you have asked (this is very tedious, though). You can get an estimate of your total questions by going to: If you have an account on Meta Stack Overflow, you can find the same page at: A: I use this bookmarklet to view all my questions: javascript: f988f36e3a
